

A correction needs a reason.

A stock adjustment without a cause is a value change nobody can explain. How the adjustment journal gets from the WMS into Dynamics 365 — and why it should not post at once.

340 adjustments. Reason: none.

Plus, minus, plus. At year end the auditor asked why inventory value had dropped by 60,000 euros without anything being sold. Nobody could say.

In a movement a pallet moves. Here, money.

Minus three pieces is minus three times cost price, posted against an account. Which one depends on the reason. Shrinkage is not breakage. Set the offset account across the board and you get one figure that means everything and explains nothing.

What. Where. Why. Where to.

Item, quantity, sign too much or too little, per line

Storage dimensions

location, batch, license plate

Reason code

why — as a code, not free text

Offset account

where the value goes, validated on import

NOT AUTOMATICALLY

A claim about reality.

With movements everything argues for automatic posting. With adjustments everything against. The journal sits there: 12 lines, reason “breakage”, 800 euros. Whoever is responsible posts — or asks. One minute. Instead of the discussion in December.

Five to eight. Not thirty.

-
- 01 Map WMS reasons and D365 reasons to each other once
 - 02 Only reasons that have different consequences
 - 03 Evaluation becomes a query: how much breakage in January?
 - 04 How many adjustments were unposted movements?
-

Every adjustment has a reason.

The auditor stops asking.

Somebody sees it before it posts.

One minute.

Shrinkage and breakage are two accounts.

Not one figure.

Whoever gives a reason may correct.

FlexxLink Warehouse — the warehouse module for Dynamics 365 — receives adjustment journals from the WMS, validates reason code and offset account, and leaves them standing until somebody looks. Built by the Soluvine development team I have worked with since Damgaard.

Adjustment journal

with reason code and offset account

30-day trial

no obligation

The full post

restless365.com/post-a-correction-needs-a-reason

Horst Fischer · restless365@outlook.com